

If you enjoy... POETRY, why not give Spoken Word a go?

“Duel Citizenship” by Denise Chaila

<https://youtu.be/1L71IGTLKgk>

This poem centres around the idea of dual citizenship and the internal and external conflict that is encapsulated in having an attachment to two or more cultures. Chaila beautifully explores the casual racism that can exist in Irish society as well as the pride she has in her cultural heritage. If you were a fan of Amanda Gorman’s powerful spoken word poem, “The Hill We Climb” (read at the inauguration of American President Joe Biden and Vice President Kamala Harris), you will love this Irish take on a similar topic.
